Mr. Logan (Disun. Ill.)—If you take reports of committees on the Treasury, you would think it was filled with angels, with the Arch-angel Michael at its head. Oh, no; there is no such thing as corruption there! I called the attention of gentlemen to these things, and asked that they should be inquired into, and in answer they insinuate that I have made charges which were not true—that had no foundation in fact. I call your attention to another fact; I ask the question, and I want you to tell me whether it is or is not so—whether you do not know that the Treasury Department has redeemed some accenty thousand dollars of counterfeit bonds!—a fact which has never been made public.

Mr. Van Wyck—I do not want to occupy the time of the House, and still. I do not want the statement of the gentleman to go unchallenged. I say to him that when the report of the committee goes before the country his question will be fully answered. I only want to say that now.

Mr. Logan—I ask the question, and you can say whether it is so or not. I do not know; you know it. I do not know such is the fact, but I have been told it is a fact. I was told in the committee room this morning that it was a fact. I ask that, without alleging it to be a fact.

Now, are you going to again charge me with stating something not trae? I heard it in your own committee room this morning. I do not know whether it is true or false; I hope it is false. I hope, sir, that it is not true, but it is not for me to say anything about it. I merely ask the question. Mr. Neade, the man who destroys the bonds, came to me three weeks ago and told me this; and the reason why I wanted this evidence printed, was this I venture the assertion there is not an honest man in this House who heard the sistement he made to me who would not have done as I have done, and asked for ntil I told him, and he so swore before until I told him, and he so swore before the committee. What else? The gen-tleman has pretended to read this copy of the book referred to. I ask that the whole of it be read to the House, and then let any man tell me what conclusion he comes to from the certificate signed on the book by three men. The Clerk read as follows:

is concerned. At all events, those books are kept so that I could commit a fraud if I was there and so disposed. Let me auppose a case: Suppose I am the printer of these bonds, and I have so much blank paper handed over to me. It is said that it is all charged as so much money. To whom is it charged? I asked the committee this morning, and I ask them now, if there is any one of them who can show me the book on which this blank paper, when it first goes into the printing department, is charged against Mr. Clark, the one who prints it as so much money or bonds? There is no such book in the department, He charges it as money against the elerk or superintendent to whom it is handed out. When it pusses through his hands there is no check against fraud. Any one can take this blank paper and print coupons without printing the bonds. The gentlemen says the fraud cannot be committed because the bonds require to be not only only registered but signed. Do coupons require to be signed by anybody? When once printed they do not have to be signed. The coupons for any amount of bonds may be printed without printing the bonds, and then the blank paper for the bonds can be burned. This may account for the duplicate coupons that the Treasury Department has been paying. There may be something in this mater. The committee had better examine it. Something might be developed.

THE COAL FIELDS OF KENTUCKY. Her Mineral and Manufacturing In

Very few of our citizens fully realize t mmense wealth which Kentucky possesses in her mineral resources, now lying buried and unproductive in an area of 13,700 square miles of coal and iron fields, being equivant to 8,768,000 square acres. The area of this territory is greater than the coal fields of Pennsylvania, which have so enormously en-lebed and populated that State; and yet we are made tributary to Pennsylvania and othe States annually for a supply of coal and iron npoverishing our finances and retarding the LIFE OF AN OLD DIVER. Under the Deep Waters and Amon the Wreeks.

(From the Cairo Democrat.) tnown in Chiro, accepted employmen coars. Eads & Nelson's wrecking or sub-te bell boats. In time he was installed for, and as such we propose to speak of as diver, and as such we propose to speak of him.

He remained in the employment of Messrs. Eads & Nelson a period or eighteen years. He is now on Messrs. Dugan & C.A.'s Underwiter, where we saw him yesterday, and learned something of the life of a diver.

The use of a bell in diving is now discarded. The diver wears a water-tight armor over his entire person, except the head, which is revered by an inverted metalite por, in which the lical can turn and move at ease. Thick, ironsparent glass is fixed in front to serve as windows; and to prevent accident, this glass is protected by steel guards or fendure. Equipped in this almor, the diver puts on a pair of lead soled shoes, weighting each wenty pounds, lashes to his back and breast wenty pounds, lashes to his back and breast the use of a lander, but can, without is arring any risk, jump from the boat as ank to the bottom. The moment he disa use under water the air pump commence a work of supplying him with a constant and fresh air. If, at any time, the a ceases too great a pressure upon him, it resure is relieved by a self-acting value and the self-acting the pump of the p on Wednesday, April 1st. State officers and General A. E. Burnside, the present Governor, is the Revablean candidate for re-election, and Lyman Peiros, his opponent has year, is again his antagouist. Pardon W. Sievens is the Republican, and Gideon A. Durfoe the Democratic nominees for Lieutenant Governor. John R. Bartlatt, the Republican candidate for Secretary of State, his no opposition. The Republican have nominated Willard Saylon, and the Democratic Coopposition. The Republican have nominated Willard Saylon, and the Democratic Samuel A. Parker and James Aikins are respectively the Republican and Democratic nominose for State Treasurer.

The total vote for Governor in 1867 was 10,550, Burside's majority being 4,194. The Sante stood, Republicans 62, Bonocratic S. It will require very large Democratic gains, indeed, to overcome such majorities.
